Summary

About this Release

Related to: 1364.0.15.001

The Modellers' Database consists of over 500 quarterly times series constructed from the NIF and TRYM econometric models. They are useful to economists, econometricians, financial analysts and students. The database covers national accounts, banking and investment, price indexes, interest rates, world data, population and labour statistics and wage and tax rates. Some of the time series are published elsewhere by ABS while others are specifically constructed for the TRYM and NIF models. For most series the data span is between 20 and 25 years.

See 1364.0.15.001.

Explanatory Notes

Time Series Spreadsheet (I-Note) - Time Series Spreadsheet

The National Income Forecasting (NIF) Model was jointly developed in the early 1970's by the Treasury and the then Commonwealth Bureau of Census and Statistics (forerunner of the Australian Bureau of Statistics). Over the subsequent years a number of versions of NIF were released following improvements to the underlying model. 1988 saw the final release of the NIF model.

The research on the present Treasury Model (TRYM) model began in 1990, partly in response to feedback on the NIF model. However, it was also motivated by a desire for a smaller, more transparent model than NIF88 with a greater focus on internal consistency. With TRYM replacing the NIF model most of the 500 NIF series became redundant. However, a smaller number of series (around 190) were retained as they were not covered within the TRYM model or were seen by users as having some additional value, at that time.

The introduction of new National Account benchmarks in the September quarter 2005 highlighted quality issues with some of the NIF series in the Modellers' Database. This resulted in a wider review of all NIF series. The review has investigating the models, assumptions and input data currently being used to create the NIF series. The NIF data was being estimated in the absence of any recognised statistical or conceptual framework. This created difficulties in defining what the scope of certain series should be. Without a clear scope estimating reliable data is quite difficult. Many of the NIF series were still referring to concepts relevant when the model was originally developed in the 1970's. For example, many of the NIF series are still on the System of National Accounts 1968 (SNA68) basis rather than the System of National Accounts 1993 (SNA93) basis currently used. As a result of this review, the publication of a number of series has been ceased.
